Objective:
The purpose of this document is to establish the guidelines for the development of virtual meetings during remote work for Canon Mexicana employees, within the framework of the measures to prevent the spread of the Coronavirus (COVID-19) in the national territory, and for the purposes to ensure the effective operation.

Scope:
To all employees who have been identified and approved for remote work.

Definitions:
Remote work: This is a working style that allows working outside of a traditional office environment, of the employees who have a working relationship with the company through information technology and telecommunications.

Virtual meetings: Meeting through electronic devices in environments participants for different reasons cannot meet in person.

CONTEXT

Remote work arises for the benefit of the company and its collaborators and requires a shift in the organizational and business culture, but mainly an individual change of all employees, so they can adapt to this new reality. To achieve this, it is important to maintain a corporate attitude through proper behavior, projecting a flawless personal image when interacting with other people.

GUIDELINES

Employees must accomplish these guidelines and conditions when they participate in virtual meetings:

I. BEFORE THE MEETING

a) The Host of the meeting must enter in advance to the room at the established time, to verify its operation, as well as to make audio and video tests before the meeting.

b) Punctuality is important during virtual meetings.

c) For having a good transmission, it is not recommended to use the cell phone applications for the development of the meeting, they can only be used if it is very necessary.

d) Use a neutral background and as clean as possible. Before starting the videoconference, it is important to look behind, to identify if there is something that is not suitable and needs to be removed. Preferably use corporate backgrounds.

e) Dress appropriately. It is not necessary to wear a suit, only in case of an important meeting with customers. You must take care of hairstyling, and in your personal care. Choose attire as if you were participating in a physical meeting.

f) Find an appropriate place to hold the meeting, locate a table or desk and proper background.

II. DURING THE MEETING

a) Make sure who you are inviting and who is joining the meeting. Confirm that the people who joined are correct so you can discuss the issue freely and with due care of the information.

b) It is important to look directly at the camera when participating, as well as avoid generating unnecessary movements.

c) As far as possible, the microphone should be muted when you are not speaking. If the video call is made from a noisy location, it is important to mute the sound, except when you need to participate.

d) Speak slowly and clearly, because sometimes the connections distort the voice. Make pauses to ask for comments or questions to make sure you are listening and understanding.

e) Adopt a correct posture and pay attention to non-verbal language. Not keeping your back straight can send the message that you are not interested in the meeting.

f) To avoid distractions, it is necessary not having many programs open during virtual meetings to prevent any type of notifications that can interrupt your attention.

g) If there are sounds around you that cannot be controlled, such as the barking of the dog, the cry of a baby, or external sound, it is not necessary to be overload; please continue the meeting without interrupting your presentation.

h) During meetings, it is important to avoid eating, drinking, smoking, yawning, or playing.

i) For efficiency, respect the time allocated for the meeting. If it´s not completed, please finish, and assign a new date and time.

III. AFTER DE MEETING

a) Be sure to send minutes to follow-up the meeting.

IV. CORPORATE INFORMATION MANAGEMENT

a) Remote work is not security risk-free, especially sharing information between members of a working group since the privacy of the meeting cannot be ensured.
b) When publishing any document, all the cautions must be taken handling information, as well as its confidentiality.

c) It is forbidden to take pictures and/or video during meetings in which you are participating. Always consider that other participants may be taking photos of speakers or of the information shared.
